1.0 Policy Statement

The Health Service Executive (HSE) believes that our employees are our most important asset in the delivery of high quality health and social services. We are committed to protecting the safety, health and welfare of our employees and those who come in contact with our activities. In this regard the HSE is focused on improving health and wellbeing and on prevention rather than simply on treatment. “A healthy workplace policy creates a supportive environment that protects and promotes the physical, mental and social wellbeing of employees” (HSE, 2015).

In meeting our commitment to enable staff to maximise their potential and work life balance (Priority 2 – Staff Engagement – People Strategy 2015 -2018) this policy sets out a framework for the prevention and management of stress in the workplace. This policy is consistent with the guidance provided by the Health and Safety Authority (HSA).

The human and organisational cost of stress from ill-health, absences from work and lower productivity can be significantly reduced by working together to address both the causes and consequences of work related stress. This starts with promoting awareness of situations that may cause workplace stress and finding ways to address these in a timely fashion. It also involves creating supportive workplaces which facilitates staff who experience stress to be involved inremedying it through reporting it. Corporate Management, Senior Managers, Line Managers and Employees each have a responsibility to contribute to this and to take steps to deal with issues identified.

While stress may result from different aspects of life, the main focus of this policy is on work-related stress. However, factors that are not work-related may also affect the employee in the workplace.

It should be noted that the workplace generally provides opportunities for developing and maintaining positive mental health and well-being.

2.0 Purpose

The purpose of this policy is to give guidance to Managers and Employees on how to prevent, identify and manage stress in the workplace, with a focus on hazard identification and risk assessment.

This policy is concerned with negative stress and the related risk factors.

Most forms of stress are caused by stressors that gradually push people beyond their capacity to cope comfortably. However, single events can sometimes set off intense and complex stress reactions. These are generally referred to as critical incidents and are outside the scope of this policy. (Ref HSE (2012) Policy for Preventing and Managing Critical Incident Stress).

Individual services may develop local Guidelines and/or Standard Operating Procedures to support implementation and on-going monitoring in line with this Policy.
3.0 Scope of the policy

This policy applies to all HSE staff, and others working in the HSE including temporary employees (to include agency staff) and students. This Policy supersedes the HSE Policy on the Prevention and Management of Stress in the Workplace, 2012.

4.0 Legislation

- The Organisation of Working Time Act 1997
- The Disability Act 2005

accidents or extreme violence. These incidents can be traumatic. Traumatic reactions within a month of the incident are called acute stress. Reactions that develop later are called post traumatic stress.

Ref: Health Service Executive’s (2012) Policy for the Prevention and Management of Critical Incident Stress

Stress management

A term used for all activities aimed at controlling stress. It includes efforts to identify, prevent and reduce stressors in the workplace and to assist employees affected by or at risk of stress.

(Ref: HSE (2012) Policy for Prevention and Management of Stress in the Workplace)

Employer

In relation to an employee:

a) Means the person or persons with whom the employee has entered into or for whom the employee works under (or, where the employment has ceased, entered into or worked under) a contract of employment

b) Includes a person (other than an employee of that person) under whose control and direction an employee works, and

Includes where appropriate the successor of the employer or an associated employer of the employer

(Ref Safety, Health & Welfare at Work Act, 2005)

Employee

Means any person who has entered into or works under (or, where the employment has ceased, entered into or worked under) a contract of employment and includes fixed-term employee and a temporary employee and references, in relation to an employer, to an employee shall be construed as references to an employee employed by that employer

(Ref Safety, Health & Welfare at Work Act, 2005)

Reasonably Practicable

In relation to the duties of an employer, means that an employer has exercised all due care by putting in place the necessary protective and preventive measures, having identified the hazards and assessed the risks to safety and health likely to result in accidents or injury to health at the place of work concerned and where the putting in place of any further measures is grossly disproportionate having regard to the unusual, unforeseeable and exceptional nature of any circumstance or occurrence that may result in an accident at work or injury to health at that place of work.

(Ref: Safety Health and Welfare at Work Act 2005, SI 10 of 2005)

Safety management system

The part of the overall management system that includes the organisational structure, planning activities, responsibilities, practices, procedures and resources for developing, implementing, achieving, reviewing and maintaining the Occupational Safety and Health Policy.
Temporary employee
An employee who is assigned by a Temporary Employment Business to work for and under the control of another undertaking availing of the employee’s services

Ref: Safety Health and Welfare at Work Act 2005, SI 10 of 2005. These employees are generally known as Agency Employees

6.0 Roles & Responsibilities

6.1 Responsibilities of the Director General (DG)

6.1.1 The DG has overall responsibility to ensure, so far as is reasonably practicable, the safety, health and welfare at work of all employees and others affected by HSE activities by:

6.1.1.1 Ensuring that arrangements are in place for identifying, evaluating and managing the risks associated with work related stress.

6.1.1.2 Ensuring the development of and compliance with this Policy.

6.1.2 The DG delegates accountability for coordinating and monitoring implementation of this Policy and any associated procedures to National Directors, Assistant National Directors, Hospital Group Chief Executive Officers, Chief Officers Community Health Organisations.

6.2 Responsibilities of the National Directors

6.2.1 Ensure arrangements are in place for identifying, evaluating, managing, monitoring and auditing the risks associated with work related stress.

6.2.2 Ensure the necessary resources are provided for implementing this Policy.

6.3 Responsibilities of the Assistant National Directors, Hospital Group Chief Executive Officer’s, Chief Officers Community Health Organisations

6.3.1 Ensure that appropriate structures are in place for the effective implementation, management, monitoring and audit of this Policy.

6.3.2 Ensure this Policy is brought to the attention of all employees.

6.3.3 Ensure that arrangements are in place within their areas of responsibility for identifying, evaluating and managing the risks associated with work related stress.

6.3.4 Ensure that appropriate resources are available to support the implementation of this Policy.

6.3.5 Integrating performance indicators in relation to the management of work related stress.
6.4 Local Senior Managers e.g. Hospital GM/CEO, Area Manager, Operations/Business Manager or Support Services GM/Directors of Nursing are responsible to:

6.4.1 Ensure that all employees are aware of this Policy.
6.4.2 Ensure that all hazards and the risks associated with work related stress are identified and assessed, and appropriate measures put in place to eliminate, control or minimise the risk.
6.4.3 Ensure there is a process in place for the Line Manager to escalate risks that cannot be managed locally onto the appropriate service risk register while managing the risk as far as is reasonably practicable.
6.4.4 Ensure that risk assessments are regularly reviewed, communicated, and in a written format and form part of the Service/Site Specific Safety Statement.
6.4.5 Ensure that employees are provided with appropriate information, instruction and training.
6.4.6 Monitor and review the effectiveness or preventative procedures and measures.
6.4.7 Audit implementation of this Policy.
6.4.8 Ensure all accidents, incidents and near misses are reported and managed in accordance with the HSE Incident Management Framework, 2018.

6.5 Line Managers e.g. Clinical Directors, Ward Managers, Department Managers, Service Managers, (Responsible Persons) are responsible for:

Detailed responsibilities of Ward/Department/Line Managers are documented in the local Site Specific Safety Statement and hence are not reproduced here (please refer to said document for further information).

In the context of work related stress, key responsibilities include:

6.5.1 Fostering a positive, supportive work environment, where good communication, support and mutual respect is the norm.
6.5.2 Carrying out regular risk assessments of potential stressors in the workplace (i.e. demands of the job, control, support, relationships, role, change management) to identify possible negative effects. The HSE Risk Assessment Form should be used for the risk assessment and is available at http://www.hse.ie/eng/staff/safetywellbeing/
6.5.3 Once notified an employee is experiencing stress, explore the issues with the employee utilising the HSE Risk Assessment Form. Available at https://www.hse.ie/eng/staff/safetywellbeing/
6.5.4 Take cognizance of other related policies as appropriate e.g. Dignity at Work Policy for the Health Service, Grievance and Disciplinary Procedures for the Health Service, HSE Managing Attendance Policy
6.5.5 Implementing and advocating for, if needed, appropriate interventions to address identified stressors, e.g. training, cover for leave and additional support (Refer to Appendix 1 for further information).
6.5.6 Recognising signs of stress in yourself and in others and encourage staff to report stressors and or symptoms of stress.
6.5.7 Being aware of the range of employee support services available and advise employees of the services / supports available to them.
6.5.8 Communicate to employees any change in the workload, work environment and / or work patterns so they have an opportunity to indicate their capability.

Supplementary guidance to this Policy (click here) provides additional guidance to managers on promoting employee wellbeing and prevention of stress in the workplace

6.6 Responsibilities of Employees

6.6.1 Take reasonable care to protect their safety, health and welfare and that of others. This includes efforts to prevent or reduce stress.
6.6.2 Adhere to and apply this Policy, local procedures and safe systems of work and any associated risk assessments and risk controls.
6.6.3 Work in a safe and responsible manner and co-operate with the employer.
6.6.4 Co-operate in the regular review of risk assessments and control measures.
6.6.5 Attend relevant training as appropriate.
6.6.6 Not be under the influence of an ‘intoxicant’ at work, which includes alcohol and drugs (including prescription and non prescription).
6.6.7 Not engage in any improper conduct or behaviour which may give rise to potential stressors in the workplace.
6.6.8 Report work practices and events that cause undue or unnecessary stress to your manager to allow for early intervention.

Supplementary guidance to this Policy (click here) provides guidance to employees in promoting employee wellbeing and prevention of stress in the workplace

Note: There may be complementary responsibilities under the Dignity at Work Policy for the Health Services and it is recommended that staff and managers make themselves aware of them.
6.7 HSE Support Services

6.7.1 Support is provided by the HSE ‘Competent Persons’ who are professional people with the appropriate qualification, training, experience and knowledge to support managers and employees in carrying out their responsibilities under this Policy.

‘Competent Persons’ include:

- Human Resource Services
- Health and Safety Services
- Occupational Health Services
- Employee Assistance and Staff Counselling Services
- Organisational Psychology Services
- Health Promotion Services

HSE Support Services:
- provide relevant and timely advice, guidance and support to managers and employees on how to comply with their legislative duties;
- provide support to managers in the use and implementation of this Policy;
- promote effective safety, health and welfare practices throughout the HSE;
- develop relevant programmes to support the implementation of this Policy;
- provide support to employees in the treatment of work-related stress symptoms;

Please refer to Appendix 6, for further information and supports.

7.0 Procedure

7.1. Hazard identification and risk assessment

Stress in the workplace is a recognised occupational hazard under the Safety, Health and Welfare at Work Act 2005, and must be addressed and managed through the risk assessment process involving participation and consultation and the application of the principles of prevention.

Managing stress in the workplace forms a core part of the HSE’s overall safety management system with a focus on the hazards and identified risks associated with potential work related stressors (psychosocial hazards).

The risk assessment process can be broken down into a number of steps as outlined in Figure 1.
The risk assessment approach based on the management standards (refer to Appendix 3) identifies six key sources of stress at work to include:
1. Demands of the job
2. Control
3. Support
4. Relationships
5. Role
6. Change

Taken together these six key sources of workplace stress define the culture of the organisation and can be used to measure the performance of the organisation or workplace. Where effective systems and work practices are in place to address these, workplace stress is unlikely to be a major problem. Where these standards are not met, the likelihood of workplace stress increases.

Risk Assessment should be carried out as follows:

- Proactively at Level 1 to work with an individual employee or collaboratively with a service/team to identify workplace stress hazards, conduct risk assessment and implement controls to reduce employees’ exposure to workplace stressors.
- At Level 2 to work with an individual employee who is exhibiting signs of stress or is seeking support, or to work collaboratively with the service/team where there is information to suggest that they may be experiencing workplace stress.

Please refer to Appendix 2 for further guidance.
7.2 Stress Management Interventions

Stress management interventions must focus on the following three Levels; the main aspects of each Level are set out as follows:

Primary (Prevention)

These are interventions aimed at the entire workforce which promote wellbeing and prevent or minimise the occurrence of stress. They also help employees to manage or cope better with stress. These include:

- Creating a supportive and positive work environment and culture in which the safety and welfare of all employees is a priority
- Creating a healthy place of work
- Implementing the HSE Corporate Safety Statement, Service Site Specific Safety Statements and supporting health and safety policies and procedures
- Implementing health and safety and ‘Dignity at Work’ policies and ensuring implementation of all other relevant HR policies and procedures
- Managers and employees proactively working together to identify and deal with potential stressors
- Encourage employees to take responsibility for their own health, giving them information on safety, health and welfare and their own health and wellbeing
- Increase ability to cope, through organising or attending stress management and work and wellbeing workshops, which could be included in existing programmes of meetings
- Giving out information on the supports available to staff

Secondary (Protection / Management)

Secondary interventions focus on the employee throughout his or her period within the HSE and includes:
- Using best practice recruitment processes
- Induction process
- Providing identified training requirements
- Providing any needed coaching, mentoring and support for the employee
- Providing performance feedback
- Access to competent advice and support
- Access to Occupational Health and EAP

Tertiary (Rehabilitation)

Tertiary intervention focuses on managing, rehabilitating symptoms of existing stress-related problems or diseases to minimise potential harm. It involves referring employees to support services e.g. Occupational Health, EAP once a problem has been identified for:

- Confidential advice, guidance, support or counselling
- Access to specialised clinical services for employees that need them
- Access to specialist clinical services for managers that need professional advice
Key point: While it is important to provide support to employees who experience stress in the workplace, the only way to improve the overall health of the workforce is to reduce stress at primary and secondary levels. The HSE will use feedback from Employee Support Services to inform primary and secondary initiatives and will take positive action on the main issues presented by employees.

Please refer to Appendix 6 HR Supports and Appendix 5 HSE Workplace Stress Flowchart for further guidance.

7.3 Information, Awareness and Training

Managers at all levels of the organisation are responsible for implementing this policy within their area.

To support implementation, a toolkit of resources for managers is available through the National Health and Safety Function at www.hse.ie/safetyandwellbeing. Support and learning interventions will be provided to staff on an on-going basis.

8.0 Implementation Plan

Implementation of this Policy forms an integral part of the Safety Management Programme and is underpinned by effective consultation, communication, supervision, monitoring, audit and review.

8.1 Communication

The HSE must make this Policy available to all staff. Electronic and other communication means can be used to maximise distribution. Copies should also be made available to external providers of services to the HSE.

Managers must ensure that personnel under their supervision have read and understand the Policy. A signature sheet is provided for this purpose.

8.2 Responsibilities for Implementation

Managers (Responsible Persons) at all levels are responsible for implementing this Policy within their area (Please refer to Section 6.0 and Appendix 7 & 8). Effective implementation will require training and support for managers.

It is essential that changes in terms of devices and work practices etc. are implemented systematically.

9.0 Monitoring, Audit and Review

9.1.1 Managers are required to monitor implementation of this policy on an annual basis using the Audit Tool in Appendix 7 and maintain evidence of same

9.1.2 Implementation of this Policy shall be audited periodically at national level

9.1.3 This Policy shall be reviewed at national level every three years or earlier if circumstances require it

10 Signs an employee may be suffering from stress and anxiety

1. Taking more time off work than usual
2. Greater use of substances such as alcohol, tobacco and drugs (prescription and illegal)
3. Increased irritability, poor concentration, reduced productivity
4. Deteriorating personal or work relationships, including bullying behaviours
5. Becoming more ‘emotional’, moody or over-reactive to what others say
6. Starting to behave differently that’s out of the norm
7. Changing of eating and sleep patterns
8. Physical reactions such as sweating, palpitations and increased blood pressure
9. Feeling negative, depressed and anxious most of the time
10. Feeling trapped or frustrated... and believing there’s no solution

Appendix 2 - Guidance Note for Managers – HSE Workplace Stress Risk Assessment

Risk Assessment
Managing Workplace Stress

Level 1 (Individual) Risk Assessment
This risk assessment takes place with every employee as an integral part of the day-to-day engagement process integral to the performance management dialogue between manager and employee.

The HSE Workplace Risk Assessment Form based on the Management Standards should be used as a benchmark against which individual’s functioning can be risk assessed, followed by implementation of appropriate control measures, if required.

Level 1 (Group/Team) Risk Assessment
This risk assessment takes place on an annual basis, as part of a team/unit based meeting (or more often if the need to do so is triggered by a particular incident or circumstances).

The HSE Workplace Risk Assessment Form based on the Management Standards should be used by managers as a benchmark against which team functioning can be risk assessed, followed by implementation of appropriate control measures.

Level 2 (Individual) Risk Assessment
Where an individual employee indicates to his/her manager or where a manager becomes aware that one of his/her staff may be experiencing workplace stress, the manager should meet with the employee and the HSE Workplace Stress Risk Assessment Form should be used to carry out a risk assessment. The manager should agree, implement and monitor appropriate control measures.

The assistance of Occ Health/ EAP/ HR may be required.

Level 2 (Group/Team/Service) Risk Assessments
Where there is information to suggest that a service may be experiencing workplace stress, the HSE Workplace Risk Assessment Form should be used to determine the nature and extent of specific workplace stressors so that appropriate control measures can be put in place to eliminate, minimise, contain and/or monitor the risks identified.

In such situations, managers may need specific support or facilitation from HR personnel in either using the HSE Workplace Risk Assessment Form in helping him/her to deal positively with the outcome of the risk assessment – i.e. facilitating discussions with the team, agreeing on required actions, implementing and reviewing action plan and moving on to the next cycle of risk assessment.
Appendix 3- Management Standards

‘Management standards’ approach to risk assessment
The Health and Safety Executive in the UK and the Health and Safety Authority in Ireland have identified six key areas for assessing potential sources of stress in the workplace. These are known as the ‘management standards’. They cover the primary sources of stress at work and can be used to measure performance in these areas. The six key areas are outlined below.

Management Standards

1.0 Demands of the job
In a healthy organisation, staff are neither overloaded nor under loaded with work and all employees are capable of doing what is expected of them. We should also observe this balance in matching effort and reward. Effort needs to be recognised and acknowledged, if not financially rewarded.

The standard is that:
- Employees indicate that they are able to cope with the demands of their jobs; and
- Systems are in place locally to respond to any individual concerns.

What should be happening?
- The demands on staff within the agreed hours of work are adequate and achievable;
- Employee’s skills and abilities are matched to their job demands;
- Jobs are designed to be within the capabilities of employees; and
- Employees’ concerns about their work environment are addressed.

Discuss these issues: workload, work patterns and the work environment

Questions to consider:
- Is the staff member able to cope with the demands of their job?
- Are the demands of the job excessive?
- Are systems in place locally to respond to any individual concerns?
Triggers which could cause stress;
- Work overload
- Boring / repetitive duties
- Inadequate resources
- Physical environment i.e. lighting, space, temperature, disruptions etc.
- Psychological working environment e.g. verbal abuse / inappropriate behaviours
- Working long hours – not taking lunch breaks / annual leave
- People management issues
- Inadequate allocation of work

The table below outlines some of the positive and negative management behaviours related to “demands”

<table>

<tr>
<td>• Awareness of team members abilities and provide training where appropriate</td>
<td>• Creating unrealistic deadlines</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Monitoring workload and refusing additional work when the team are under pressure / setting realistic deadlines</td>
<td>• Listening but not taking action</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Following through problems on behalf of employees/foster a problem solving approach. Developing action plans and plan/forecast workloads</td>
<td>• Lack of consistency in approach / being indecisive</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Review processes to identify improvements</td>
<td>• Panicking and not forward planning workflow and deadlines</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Promote task rotation/job enrichment</td>
<td>• Not being aware of team pressures</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

In Summary

Demands: This includes issues such as workload, work patterns and the work environment

2.0 Control

In a healthy organisation, employees can take part in decision making and are able to effectively use their range of skills.

The standard is that:
- Employees indicate that they are able to have some input as to the way they do their work; and
- There are systems in place locally to respond to any individual concerns.
What should be happening?
- Where possible, employees have some control over some aspects of their work;
- Employees are encouraged to use their skills and initiative to do their work;
- Where possible, employees are encouraged to develop new skills to undertake new and challenging pieces of work;
- Employees have some say over when they take their breaks, where possible; and
- Employees are consulted over their work patterns/rosters/shifts.

Discuss these issues: Work activities and environment and each person’s control over how work is carried out; consulting with staff.

Questions to consider:
- Does the staff member have any influence in the way they carry out their work activities, such as when they take their breaks?
- Are staff able to use their own initiative and skills?
- Are they encouraged to develop new skills?
- Are systems in place locally to respond to any individual/group concerns?

Triggers which could cause stress:
- Not being able to manage the demands of the job and life outside work
- Rigid working patterns and deadlines imposed with no autonomy or control allowed
- Conflicting work demands – from different managers or aspects of the job
- Two way conversation and discussion – not actively encouraged to discuss issues

The table below outlines some of the positive and negative management behaviours related to “control”

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Positive Management Behaviours</th>
<th>Negative Management Behaviours</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>• Trusting employees to do their work /empowerment</td>
<td>• Micro management</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Steering employees in a direction rather than imposing</td>
<td>• Imposing ‘it’s my way or no way’</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Knows when to consult employees and when to make a decision</td>
<td>• Not listening to employee’s and making decisions without consultation</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Provides opportunity for employees to air views and holds regular meetings</td>
<td>• Not allowing time off for employee’s development and to attend training courses</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Encourages staff to develop and reviews development</td>
<td>• Not listening to new ideas or allowing employee’s to suggest and try improved ways of working</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

In summary

Control: How much say employees have in the way they do their work.
3.0 Support
In a healthy organisation, all employees have support and training and are able to balance work and life outside work.

The standard is that:
- Employees indicate that they receive adequate information and support from their colleagues and superiors; and
- There are systems in place locally to respond to any individual concern e.g. Staff Association agreements (Information and Consultation Agreements 2006), Grievance procedures

What should be happening?
- The organisation has policies and procedures to adequately support employees;
- Systems are in place to enable and encourage managers to support their staff;
- Systems are in place to enable and encourage employees to support their colleagues;
- Employees know what support is available and how and when to access it;
- Employees know how to access the resources they need to do their job; and
- Employees receive regular and constructive feedback.

Discuss these issues:
- What encouragement, sponsorship and resources are provided by the organisation, line management and by colleagues?

Questions to consider:
- Do staff receive adequate information and support from their colleagues and managers?
- Do staff know what support is available and how and when to access it?
- Do staff know how to access the resources they need to do their job?
- Do staff receive regular and constructive feedback?

Triggers which could cause stress:
- Lack of support and encouragement from managers and colleagues
- Lack of development /career progression opportunities
- Lack of information sharing /withholding information
- A working culture of encouraging long or unsociable hours i.e. seeing colleagues as weak if they don’t consistently work long hours.
The table below outlines some of the positive and negative management behaviours related to “support”

4.0 Relationships
In a healthy organisation, there are good working relationships and bullying and harassment at work is clearly dealt with.

The standard is that:
• Employees state that they are not subjected to unacceptable behaviour; and
• There are systems in place locally to respond to any individual concerns.

What should be happening?
• We promote positive behaviours at work to avoid conflict and ensure fairness;
• Employees share information relevant to their work;
• We have agreed policies and procedures to prevent or resolve unacceptable behaviour e.g. ‘Dignity at Work’ Policy for the Health Services;
• We have systems in place to enable and encourage managers to deal with unacceptable behaviour; and
• We have systems in place to enable and encourage employees to report unacceptable behaviour.
Discuss these issues:

- Whether positive working relationships are promoted and present in the workplace, to avoid conflict and dealing with unacceptable behaviours.

Questions to consider:

- Have staff been subjected to unacceptable behaviours, such as bullying?
- Do we manage unacceptable behaviour effectively?
- Are there mechanisms for staff to report unacceptable behaviours?

Triggers which could cause stress:

- Poor working relationships with managers / teams
- Combative or confrontational communication styles
- Poor communication and information sharing
- Not dealing with disputes / complaints at an early stage

The table below outlines some of the positive and negative management behaviours related to “relationships”

5.0 Role

In a healthy organisation, all employees are aware of what is expected of them in their role and how it will contribute to the organisation’s strategy.

The standard is that:

- Employees state that they understand their role and responsibilities; and
- There are systems in place locally to respond to any individual concerns.
What should be happening?
- We ensure that, as far as possible, the different requirements we place on employees are compatible;
- We provide information to enable employees to understand their role and responsibilities;
- We ensure that, as far as possible, the requirements we place on employees are clear; and
- We have systems in place to enable employees to raise concerns about any uncertainties or conflicts they have in their role and responsibilities.

Discuss these issues:
Whether people understand their role within the organisation and whether the organisation ensures that they do not have conflicting roles.

Questions to consider:
- Do staff say that they understand their role and responsibilities?
- In case of re-deployment, either short-term or long-term, has employee adequate information on their role and responsibility in the new location?
- As far as possible, are the different requirements we place on staff compatible and clearly understood?

Triggers which could cause stress:
- Lack of clarity of job role – no job descriptions /objective setting
- Employees unaware of policies and procedures in place to support them
- Lack of one to one communication (meetings / feedback)

The table below outlines some of the positive and negative management behaviours related to “role”

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Positive Management Behaviours</th>
<th>Negative Management Behaviours</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>• Keeps teams informed of what is happening with the department and the organisation</td>
<td>• Keeps people in the dark</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Communicates clear goals and objectives. Clearly defines roles, expectations and lines of communication</td>
<td>• Often makes decisions and holds meeting behind closed doors with no consultation in situations where consultation would have been appropriate</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Regular meetings and two way communication</td>
<td>• Does not update and have regular meetings to communicate changes</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>• Talks to others about actions not completed without approaching the employee concerned</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

In summary

Role: whether you understand your role within the organisation and we ensure that you do not have conflicting roles
6.0 Change
In a healthy organisation, the strategy for change is clear and all employees are aware of change and how it will affect them.

The standard is that:
- Employees state that we engage them often when undergoing an organisational change; and
- There are systems in place locally to respond to any individual/group concerns - e.g. Staff Association agreements, Grievance procedures.

What should be happening?
- We provide employees with timely information to enable them to understand the reasons for proposed changes;
- We consult adequately with employees on changes and give them opportunities to influence proposals via agreed frameworks, including those with Trade Union/Staff Associations.
- Employees are aware of the probable impact of any changes to their jobs. If needed, we give employees training to support any changes in their jobs;
- Employees are aware of timetables for changes; and
- Employees have access to relevant support during changes.

Discuss these issues:
- How we manage organisation change (large or small) and communicate it in the organisation

Questions to consider:
- Do managers engage with staff frequently when undergoing any organisational change?
- Do we consult staff enough?
- Do we give timely information about the reasons for proposed changes?
- Are staff aware of likely timescales for change?
- Do staff have access to relevant support during changes?

Triggers which could cause stress:
- Poor communication – uncertainty about what is happening
- Fears about job security
- Ineffective time planning of change
- Insufficient training or knowledge transfer on new systems/processes
- No consultation/engagement
The table below outlines some of the positive and negative management behaviours related to “change”

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Positive Management Behaviours</th>
<th>Negative Management Behaviours</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>• Keep team informed with regular meeting and communication updates – 2 way communication.</td>
<td>• Leave team members in the dark about changes. Communicating at the last minute.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Communicates clear goals and objectives and expectations</td>
<td>• Allowing people to hear message through the grape vine.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Provides timely information and consult</td>
<td>• Not allowing 2 way communications on matters of change.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Provides adequate support e.g. training.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Considers group dynamics and physical working environment/positioning.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

In Summary

Change: How we manage organisational change (large or small) and communicate it in the organisation.
Indicators

The standard is that:
- Employees indicate that pressure at work does not affect their health;
- Systems are in place to monitor and review common indicators of high pressure at work.

What should be happening / states to be achieved:
- The organisation monitors accidents and identifies their causes;
- The organisation has a Health and Safety Policy in place;
- The organisation monitors sickness absence and identifies reasons for absence;
- The organisation monitors turnover of staff and identifies reasons for resignation;
- Systems are in place to enable and encourage managers to identify and manage low morale among staff;
- The organisation monitors the performance/productivity of its staff; and
- Systems are in place for employees to raise concerns about their health and safety at work.

The management standards are designed to aid discussion about the impact of these potential sources of workplace stress. Managers can use these as a framework for identifying risk with one employee or with a group.

Action/Implementation Plans

When using the HSE Workplace Stress Risk Assessment Form an action plan is a key part of the risk assessment process.

Demands

What is causing you to feel under excessive pressure at work?

- Hard to manage extra work demands e.g. HIQA recommendations & introducing more activities for service users with existing staff cover of 1:2 Nurse/Care Staff. Only one staff member can leave unit to help with activities.

- Daily work duties very demanding as all service users are high dependant- difficult to set time aside to do other work e.g. review and update care plans. When crises arises little support from management

What are key aspects of your role/job description?

- To provide nursing care to patients (high dependant)

Appendix 5 - HSE Workplace Stress Flowchart

HSE Workplace Stress Flowchart
Note: please refer to HSE Policy for Prevention & Management of Stress in the Workplace

Employee at work reports symptoms of stress

Arrange to meet employee*, Identify risks using HSE Workplace Stress Risk Assessment Template

If stress symptoms are not work-related:
Advise/encourage employee to visit their GP or self-refer to Occupational Health/Staffcare/EAP Service
Keep in regular contact with employee and agree actions required
When employee returns at work, meet regularly & monitor situation
If symptoms persist, refer employee back to Occupational Health

If stress symptoms are work-related:
Following risk assessment, identify solutions with employee & complete Action Plan
Agree implementation & review timeframe
Make employee aware of employee supports e.g. Staffcare/EAP/Occupational Health
Implement actions
Meet regularly & monitor situation
Readjust actions if necessary & agree if readjustments are temp/permanent
If symptoms persist, refer employee to Occupational Health

You receive a Medical Cert stating that employee is off work due to stress

Note: Follow guidelines in HSE Managing Attendance Policy.
Make contact with employee & arrange suitable time/date/way to discuss sick leave e.g. phone/visit

If stress symptoms are work-related:
Make employee aware of employee supports e.g. Staffcare/EAP/Occupational Health
Invite employee to meet you*.
Identify risks using HSE Workplace Stress Risk Assessment Template
If you require professional advice, consult with Occupational Health who can assist with risk assessment
Following risk assessment, agree Action Plan with employee
On return to work, meet regularly, monitor situation & readjust actions, if necessary
If symptoms persist or you require additional guidance, consult with Occupational Health
Refer to HSE Rehabilitation Policy

*Note: If employee is attributing his/her work related stress to an interpersonal difficulty with his/her line manager, a management referral to Occupational Health can be arranged and if appropriate, Occupational Health may suggest that the risk assessment be completed by an alternative Manager identified through HR.
